We build digital states that don't just survive crises, but are architected to thrive through them
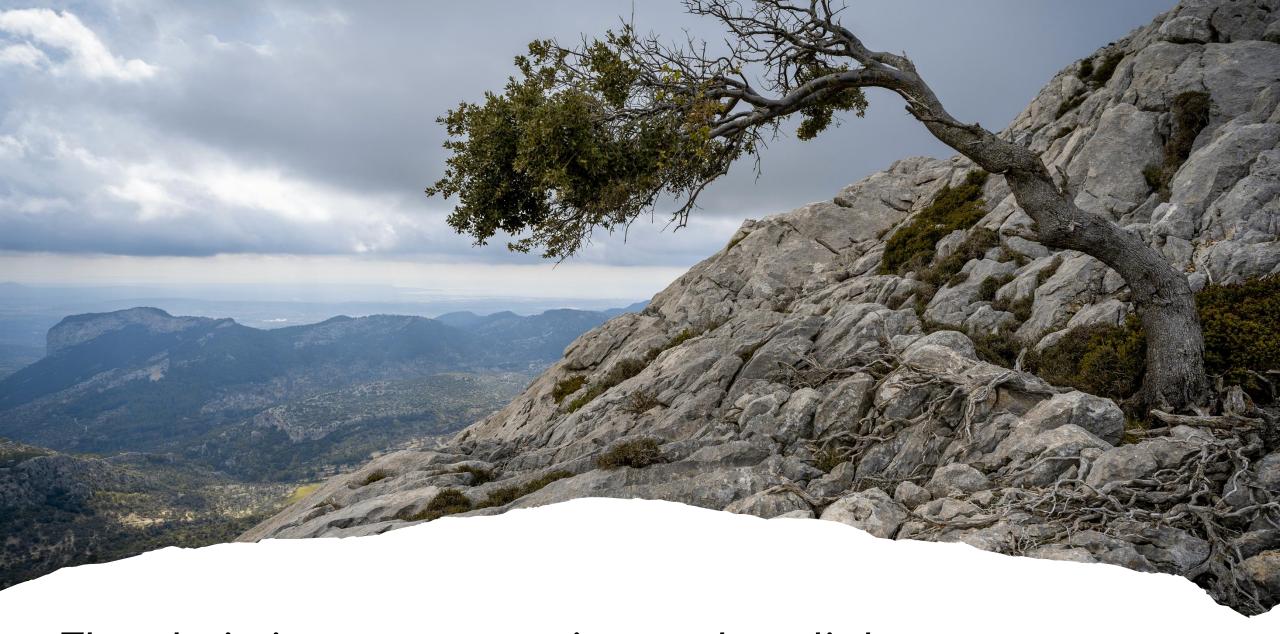

Resilience by design: the new standard of e-governance

The chain is as strong as its weakest link